

BIG ROOF FOR BIG HEARTS – BURNS & SCALO OHIO READY FOR CHALLENGES OF RE-ROOF PROJECT AT COLUMBUS CENTER FOR HUMAN SERVICES

(August 23, 2018) COLUMBUS - When Burns & Scalo Ohio was awarded a re-roof project for the Columbus Center for Human Services, they knew it would have some hurdles. As a non-profit that supports services for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities, CCHS can not afford to have disruptions or downtime during the re-roof. Combined with its large size at 41,580 square feet, the project would present challenges that will need to be planned out and overcome.

Working closely with the CCHS facilities team, Burns and Scalo Ohio project management leaders do not believe the obstacles will impact the project success, set to begin in September. “It definitely presents some challenges from a project management side,” says Jess Hellmich, sales executive at Burns & Scalo Ohio, “but we’ve put together a focused plan and are working closely with the CCHS team to ensure that the individualized services proceed uninterrupted.”

The proposal from Burns & Scalo Ohio includes performing the re-roof on different sections of the building and setting up work areas in coordination with the CCHS staff and their schedules. The orchestrated effort will focus on ensuring operations on both sides run smoothly, the project’s schedule stays on target, and minimal interruption is optimized.

“We’re inspired by the people that work at CCHS,” Hellmich adds, “They go the extra mile to help those in need and it makes us at Burns & Scalo Ohio want to go the extra mile to make sure we deliver on a project that keeps them doing what they do best for years to come.”
